Confused & overwhelmed by the plethora of different products & serums to use on your skin? Do I really need them & what exactly do they all do? Well this should clear some of the confusion & if you’re serious about anti-ageing products then you need to know this.

Why should I be putting anti-oxidants on my face? Because anti-oxidants slow down the aging process in the skin and help to protect the skin cells from damage caused by everyday life. Antioxidants such as vitamins C, E and B5, and beta-carotene help to look after, repair and protect the membrane of the skin cell. Nearly all aging is caused by free radical damage & antioxidants come along & mop up this damage.

So what is the purpose of vitamin A? Vitamin A is quite unique because it is the only nutrient that can penetrate the membrane of the skin cell to repair and normalize the DNA of the cell. It is the key anti-ageing ingredient for treating wrinkles, sun damage, acne and scarring. Vitamin A helps to prevent and to reverse photo-ageing and improves hydration, hence vitamin A will always be an essential nutrient that has to be replaced each day.

Which Eye Gel Do I Need?

At Raptcha'u we sell about 3 different eye gels/creams & understand your confusion as to which one best suits your skin. This is where buying your skincare from a professional salon has it's bonuses because we can help to guide you to the product that best suits your lifestyle & most importantly your skin. I will start at the top of the range, my personnel favourite, which also comes with $102 price tag(of course) is the C-Quence eye gel. Why is this one so good? Because it contains peptides which work in synergy with vitamin A (our key anti-aging ingredient), vitamin C & E to reduce the appearance of wrinkles around the eye area. I just love this eye gel & would recommend it for anyone who is serious about their eye gels, already has lines around the eyes & who really wants to see results. This one will last you about 3 months using it morning and night. It doesn't smell nice or feel like anything great when you first put it on, but I noticed results within a couple of weeks of use. It also has a nifty little window on the side so you can see how much product you have left.

If you can't justify spending $102 on an eye gel then the ASAP Advanced Eye Repair at $49.95 might be the one for you with some great key ingredients like vitamin A & K to strengthen the blood vessels around the eye & can reduce dark circles under the eyes. This one also contains CoQ10 & green tea which are both powerful anti-oxidants & ceramides to help regenerate & nourish the delicate skin around the eyes. ASAP eye gel comes in a great pump that is easy to disperse & lasts for about 4 months.

Philou About Face Eye Gels come in a smaller pump and are quite economical at around $30 each. The Philou eye gel contains a concentration of herbal oils in a cool aloe vera delivery system & contains Rosehip oil which makes it great for healing and improving the moisture content of the skin.

Just a quick tip, when applying your eye gel, put it on first after cleansing so your hands don't contain residue of any other heavier face creams or serums that may be too strong for the eye area.

Raptcha'u Updates

Pictured here is Julia and I after finishing our adventure race in Angelsea on the 2nd of March. We raced for 8½hrs & were the 3rd female team to cross the line. We even picked up an extra “idiot” prize for collecting all 10 checkpoints in the orienteering when we only had to get 6. Doh! If it wasn't for this stuff up we probably would have cleaned up 1st prize.

On Sunday May 24th I competed with Owen, my adventure racing pal, in the Barossa half marathon (21.1km). I did it in a time of 1hr 41 minutes and used it as a training run for my full marathon I plan to do in August.

I was also lucky enough in May to go to the Pink concert in Adelaide, now I have been to a lot of concerts in my life but that was the best. Awesome!
